ELECTRIC MEDICAL ASSOCIATION

Kansas City, Mo., June 17:—The thirty eighth annual convention of the National Medical Association is in session here with a large attendance. Three opening exercise were held this morning at the Coates House. The address of the president, Dr. L. A. Perce of Long Beach, Cal., and an address by Dr. G. W. Boskowitz of New York City were the features of the afternoon session. The convention will continue through the remainder of the week.

CREDENTIALS COMMITTEE

Report Adopted by Virtually Unanimous Vote.

LODGE ASSUMES CHARGE.

Massachusetts Senator, After Becoming Permanent Presiding Officer, Praises the Record of the Republican Party-Marching Clubs a Feature.

Chicago, June 17.—After Temporary Chairman Burrows called the Republican national convention to order for the second day's proceedings he presented Rev. Dr. Waters of Chicago, an Episcopal clergyman, who offered prayer. He closed with the Lord's prayer.

The chair presented to the convention Henry Baker of Minnesota and Judge J. D. Connor of Indiana, who were delegates to the Republican national convention in 1856 when the convention nominated John C. Fremont.

After the band had rendered a number of patriotic airs a white-gowned lady wearing an extensive "merry widow" hat adorned with pink roses, sang, and for an encore gave "My Old Kentucky Home" in a manner which called forth much applause particularly from the Kentucky delegation.

By 12 o'clock the delegates were pouring through all the entrances, and the hall was filled—too well filled—in fact, for serious objection was made by the members of the Chicago fire department to the manner in which aisles, and the approaches to the stage were blocked up. Strong representations were made to the convention authorities, and in a few minutes a number of policemen were sent to clear them. The majority of the people occupying these passage-ways were not possessed of tickets entitling them to seats, and they were compelled to climb to the gallery, and fill what little standing room there was remaining in that quarter.

TENNESSEE FOR BRYAN

Nashville, Tenn., June 17.—The Democratic State Convention was called to order here today to select delegates to the national convention at Denver. All indications at the opening pointed to a harmonious session. By agreement of the State committee and campaign managers the convention is to take no action with regard to the gubernatorial contest now on between Governor Patterson and ex-Senator Carmack. As both factions are for Bryan for the presidency there will be no opposition to resolutions indorsing the Nebraska leader.

The Ohio delegation came in provided with red felt pennants attached to canes, and bearing a likeness of Secretary Taft with the words, "Our Candidate."

The Philander C. Knox club of Philadelphia gave the Pennsylvania delegation their chance to cause a demonstration of great enthusiasm.

The appearance of the Marion club of Indianapolis carrying Fairbanks banners, brought the Indiana delegation to the tops of their chairs to lead in cheers for their candidate for the presidency. Before the convention was opened the clubs paraded in the hall.

A singing club of Columbus, O., led the singing of the "Star Spangled Banner" while the whole assemblage stood on its feet and joined in the song.

Mayor Bookwalter of Indianapolis, one of the leaders of the "allies" in presenting contests to the national committee, and the committee on credentials, authorized the statement upon arriving at the convention hall that the idea of presenting a minority report from the credentials committee had been abandoned.

The Knox adherents, after taking their seats, opened and distributed a bundle of small flags of dark blue bearing the words "Keystone State" in white letters. They waved them briskly for a few seconds, just to let the Ohio men, just in front of them, know that they were prepared for eventualities as well as they.

The report of the credentials committee, which favored seating all the present delegates and adding the six delegates from New Mexico, giving them one-third a vote each, was adopted by a viva voce vote, ex-Governor Warmouth of Louisiana and a few others shouting "No!"

After the marching band had passed the convention musicians played the popular song of the state: "Illinois." The Cannon contingent called out renewed cheering of cries of "Hurrah for Uncle Joe!"

TO TAKE THREE YEAR'S WALK

Toronto, Ont., June 17.—Two young Englishmen, Arthur David Hadley and John Wynne Harley, started from the city hall here today on a three years' walking tour. The wager for which they are walking is $10,000, and their itinerary is Toronto to Vancouver, to Seattle, to New York, to Halifax, to Toronto.

According to the conditions of the wager they must finish within three years, and not rest more than a month between each section. They must earn their expenses en route, sleep every night in a tent, draw their baggage in a hand cart, and obtain the signature of some official in every town and village through which they pass.

Another Knox club from Philadelphia, bearing his banners and headed by a band playing "Dixie," was next in the long line of demonstrators, and were greeted with loud cheering in which the Pennsylvania delegation led. The Pennsylvanians' drum major was quite the most gorgeous personage who had entered the convention. A furry white shako set off his striking height, and his gay blue uniform was weighted down with medals of all descriptions.

"Knox, Knox, we must have Knox!" cried the Philadelphians, and their demand was echoed by their delegates who took to their feet, and waved vigorously their blue Knox pennants.

Behind the Knox enthusiasts came the Americus Tariff club of Pittsburgh, headed by a large band of music, and then came the Young Men's Blaine club of Cincinnati, they wore tall white hats, and carried small American flags. Their appearance produced frenzy in the Ohio delegation. Instantly every man was on his feet, the red flags tossed up, and cheer after cheer rang through the hall. The blue banners with the face of Secretary Taft upon it produced another outburst and the Ohio men screamed, and danced about while the band in the gallery struck up "Hail to the Chief" which it has, by some coincidence, played ever time the blue banner has been flung to the air.

Following the Blaine club there came a distinct novelty in the way of a band playing "Tammany" and then a big delegation of visitors from Danville, Ill., bearing small flags with "Cannon" on them, and a large banner announcing them as "Neighbors of 'Uncle Joe'."

The report of the committee on permanent organization, naming Senator Lodge of Massachusetts as permanent chairman of the convention, was adopted unanimously. General Stewart L. Woodford of New York and Governor Deneen of Illinois escorted Senator Lodge to the platform.

The senator, after thanking the convention for the honor, made a lengthy speech, in which he praised the record of the Republican party.

Senator Lodge's statement that the Democratic party asked the youth of our country to judge them by their undiscovered future caused great merriment and cheers. Two minutes of cheering during Lodge's speech the whole convention rose in tumultuous cheering and flag waving.

Had its Troubles, Too.

Chicago, June 17.—The committee on rules and order of business also had troubles of its own Tuesday night and adjourned until Wednesday morning with the controversy unsettled to reduce ratio of representation in future national conventions. The question was before the committee in the form of two resolutions—one by Representative Burke of Pennsylvania, the other by Representative Parsons of New York—both of which, it was argued by those who opposed them, would have an important effect upon the status of negro members of the Republican party in the south.

BRYAN, TEXAS, JUNE 18, 1908.

Bryan wants no boosterfest nor boom. A steady, healthy growth is better.

Why not supply the kids with Maxim noiseless guns for the Fourth of July festivities?

It is hard to tell whether that anti-injunction plank is a bone of contention or an apple of discord.

Recent occurrences have made it plain that Taft has neither the tact of McKinley nor the rugged strength of Roosevelt.

Taft hasn't tried on his Texas trousers yet. If he gets the nomination it is possible he will be too big for his britches.

The Eagle is behind the Galveston Tribune in its effort to eliminate the "straw vote" and the "open letter." Both are nuisances.

Governor Campbell will very likely be renominated and re-elected, but it is a safe bet that he will not choose his successor.

"Harmonizing is one of the fine arts," says the society editor of the Fort Worth Star. There is an opportunity for some exquisitely artistic work at College at this time.

BRYAN'S GREATEST NEED.

Good Roads! Better Roads! The Best Possible Roads!

The great Apostle Paul admonished Timothy, whom he affectionately called his son in the gospel, to preach the word in season and out of season. While the Eagle always desires to be conservative and shrinks for the suspicion of being hobby-horsical, its conviction of the importance to Bryan of improving the condition of the highways radiating from and centering in the town is so strong that it must often call attention to this subject. The reasons for this conviction are so many that simply to mention all of them would fill more space than is consistent with our other obligations. Nor is it necessary to state them. Some of them are so obvious that all intelligent people are familiar with them. Where, as in this case, everybody is on the same side, there is no place for argument. There is not a man, woman or child in Bryan or in Brazos county with sense enough to have an opinion on any subject who does not believe that good roads are desirable. It is not argument that is needed, but action. Faith without works is dead.

But if everybody agrees that there ought to be improvement in the public roads, why is not the improvement made? There is no reason that we know of except the scarcity of man. It is this that keeps us from enjoying many good things that are within our reach. Roads cannot be built without the sacrifice of either labor or money, or both, and everyone of us keeps waiting in the hope that somebody else will make the sacrifice.

When we consider, however, that the extent to which people of different nations give way to or overcome this congenital sluggishness of human nature, measures the difference between savagery and civilization, it is easy to understand why some towns outstrip others in the race of progress.

Bryan has never been lacking in public spirit, but the enterprise of its people has heretofore found expression chiefly in the building of schools and churches, and with these prime agencies of civilization it is now proportionately better equipped than any other town or city in the Southwest. While our educational and religious institutions are our joy and pride, and will continue to require and to receive our fostering care, there is no pressing need of improvement in these lines now.

The present, then, is a favorable time for directing our best efforts toward supplying the most pressing desideratum that now presents itself—good roads.

Suppose, for instance, with Bryan as a center there were an air-line road leading northeast into Madison county, a second air-line road leading southeast into Grimes county, a third air-line road leading southwest into the bottom and a fourth air-line road leading northwest into the bottom; suppose all these roads were built and maintained so that at all seasons the heaviest loads could be drawn over them with the least possible expenditure of power, either of muscle or of traction engines, and that automobiles, motorcycles and bicycles could pass smoothly and swiftly through their entire length—what would be the result? Can any man doubt that the increase of business and of property values would repay the cost several hundred fold. Suppose the merchants of Bryan could send out motorcycles ten, twelve, fifteen or twenty miles in every direction to deliver goods ordered by telephone. Suppose the farmers and their families could receive letters and daily papers almost as soon as the people in town. We might go on supposing through column after column and then have to leave off for want of space.

These random reflections are respectively commended to the consideration of the gentlemen of the Bryan Progressive League, who are to meet today.

The federal treasury is furnishing the sinews of war for the anti-mistletoe campaign, and the money will be spent in Texas. If it came out of the pockets of the people of the State, the Eagle would be among the kickers, but so long as Uncle Sam pays the freight and the expense money is coming our way we can afford to smile and say nothing.

Bryan has sent forth into the world this year a large bunch of the best advertisements that could possibly be devised—the graduates of its five schools. They will talk Bryan wherever they go.

The Galveston News yesterday published a good half-tone picture of Mr. F. M. Law, assistant cashier of the First National Bank of Bryan, and late president of the Alumni Association of A. and M. College.

For Rent—My home place on east side of town; large cool rooms; plenty of good water. J. L. Fountain.

INFECTED SHADE TREES.

Preyed Upon by Destructive Insects—
Remedy Prescribed by State Entomologist.

Observant persons have noticed this summer that there is something the matter with many of the shade trees which add so much to the beauty and comfort of the streets and homes, and to the attractiveness of the grounds belonging to the public buildings of Bryan. While but few trees are as yet affected so seriously as to impair their symmetry or their utility for shade, it is believed most of them are suffering from the pest in its incipient stages, while a few already show its baleful effects in dead limbs and discolored foliage. If not checked the results next year are likely to be serious, if not disastrous, to the trees.

In conversation with Professor R. O. Allen on the grounds of Allen Academy a few days ago a representative of the Eagle noted the unhealthy appearance of a maple, near which they were standing, and an investigation showed that the limbs of a number of trees of different varieties were in a moribund condition. The Eagle man cut a bunch of twigs from these trees and sent them to Professor Sanborn of the Department of Entomology in the Agricultural and Mechanical College of Texas, who is also co-operative entomologist specialist in Aphididae of the United States Bureau of Entomology, with a request for an opinion as to the cause of the trouble and the remedy. The reply, received yesterday, is as follows:

College Station, Tex., June 15, '08.
Editor Bryan Eagle, Bryan Texas.

Dear Sir: Your letter of the 13th instant, with inclosure of infested shade tree twigs to hand. These twigs are not infested with a disease, but are infected with a scale insect (Chrysomphalus tenebriosus), which is somewhat similar to the San Jose scale.

In answer to your query for a remedy, beg to say that the lime sulphur wash is one of the best remedies that can be applied to scale insects in general. This, however, is a winter spray, and should not be applied while the foliage is on the trees. Moreover, during the summer there are a great many parasites which attack the different scales, and if an application is made at this time, many of the beneficial insects will be killed. On the other hand, if a remedy is applied in the winter time, these inimical insects of the scales are likely to be well protected in their hibernating quarters. My advice, therefore, is to use a spray as soon as defoliation occurs in the fall. Wherever the scales are serious, a second application should be made in early spring before foliage occurs. This spray should be applied with a regular spray pump, with nozzles that are adapted for such applications. The Vermorel or Mistry spray nozzles are especially recommended, since they scatter the spray into a mist. If the latter is applied to the infected shade trees, in a way that no exposed places are left untouched by it, the scales will stand a poor chance of living under its effect.

The formula recommended is as follows: Lime (fresh unslacked) 20 pounds, sulphur 15 pounds, water (to make) 50 gallons. This formula should be mixed as follows: Mix the sulphur into a paste and add about 15 gallons of hot boiling water. Add the lime and stir while slacking. Boil about 45 minutes or until the bright yellow color of the sulphur disappears. This may then be added to the remainder of the 50 gallons of water and is ready for use.

Very truly yours,
C. E. SANBORN,
Acting State Entomologist.

JNO. C. VICK MILLING FEED, GRAIN

The reason home ground meal is giving such satisfaction to all who have tried it is corn is classified into four reductions, viz: Corn starch, corn flour, bolted meal, and bran. Corn starch and corn flour is the nutritious part of the grain which is extracted. Bolted meal is the flint part. Home ground meal you get it all and get it fresh. We make our own chops from best shelled corn in car lots. The advantage in freshness and purity is obvious without further comment.

Bring your corn and have it ground into chops or meal, and let me sell you feed stuff.

TAFT FORCES CONTROL.

This Was Soon Manifested in Credentials Committee.

CHOSE FULTON CHAIRMAN

General Impression Was That Some Opposition Would Be Shown, but His the Only Name That Came Before the Body.

Chicago, June 17.—The Taft forces disclosed the fact that they were in complete control of the credentials committee of the convention within a few minutes after the committee was called to order Tuesday afternoon. It had been expected there would be opposition to the election of Senator Charles W. Fulton as chairman, but when his name was proposed by Orasmus R. Fyler of Connecticut and seconded by Harry M. Daugherty of Ohio, no other names were suggested in spite of the announcement that had been made that the representatives of the "allies" would make a fight for the election of Mayor Charles W. Bookwalter, a personal friend of Vice President Fairbanks. The election of Mr. Fulton was unanimous. J. N. Smith of New York was elected temporary secretary, although he is not a member of the committee. After the election of Mr. Fulton, who is known to be pro-Taft, and who sat as a member of the national committee in hearing contests, methods of procedure were discussed by the committee. As time went on without word coming from the committee room in the Coliseum Annex, and no cases being called, a rumor that the committee would resort to "blanket" approval of the temporary roll, which had been prepared by the national committee was strengthened. Charges that the Taft organization had formulated a scheme for a "setam roller" disposition of all the anti-Taft contests were made freely. In fact, it was said that Representative J. S. Bassett, the member of the committee from New York, had been selected to make the motion that arguments in the contest be not heard, and that the recommendations of the national committee be adopted. This report created great excitement among those interested in the contests who were waiting in the lobby outside. At the end of nearly an hour's discussion a ten-minute recess was ordered.

All the members participating in the motion and the men appointed by Chairman Fulton are friendly to the Taft management. Members of the committee opposed to Secretary Taft seemed to be as much in the minority as the Taft forces on the national committee. During the recess several of them remarked openly that the contests "were as good as over; that the credentials committee was cut and dried for Taft, and that nothing could be accomplished by presenting the cases."

All of the contests had been certified from the national committee to the credentials committee. They involved 219 seats, and 216 of these had been given to the Taft forces on the temporary roll. Representatives of Fairbanks, Hughes, Cannon and Foraker had designated counsel to look after their interests before the committee. There was no counsel for the Taft management in attendance, which was taken as an indication that dependence had been placed in their being able to carry their point.

During the recess the committee received Thomas Taggart, chairman of the Democratic sub-committee on arrangements of the Denver convention. The Democratic committeemen had been looking over the Coliseum, and Roger C. Sullivan, the member from Illinois, suggested a call on Mr. New, the Republican national chairman. He was out, and a conference was in progress in his room. Mr. Taggart was informed of the circumstances, and said: "Never mind; we will take a look at the steam roller," whereupon the party was shown into the room, where members of the credentials committee awaited a report from the sub-committee.

"That's an implement we don't need in the Democratic party," said Mr. Taggart. "We have nothing but harmony now, and there will be no occasion to introduce politics of the steam roller type."

That the committee of five members to consider order of business was not unanimous was disclosed by its prolonged session. At 4:50 p. m. the sub-committee concluded its meeting and entered the credentials committee room.

The committee voted to grant hearings in the contested cases. The report of the sub-committee proposed to give ten minutes to each side for argument in relation to delegates-at-large and eight minutes to the side for district contests. Mr. Moseley of Mississippi moved to lay this plan on the table, but the motion was drafted and the sub-committee's report adopted.

As soon as the decision to hear the contests was announced by the committee the counsel representing Fairbanks, Cannon, Hughes and Foraker submitted a statement showing that they purpose to submit cases involving 110 seats as follows:

Alabama at large and all congressional districts, twenty-two delegates. Arkansas, Fifth district, two delegates. Georgia, First and third districts, four delegates. Kentucky, First, Fifth, Sixth and Eleventh districts, eight delegates. Mississippi delegation at large and Third, Fifth and Eighth districts, ten delegates. Missouri, Tenth, Eleventh and Twelfth districts, six delegates. Ohio, Thirteenth district, two delegates. Tennessee delegation at large and Second, Third, Fourth, Fifth, Sixth, Seventh, Eighth and Tenth districts, twenty delegates. Texas delegation at large and sixteen districts, thirty-six delegates.

ALL-NIGHT SESSION.

National Committee Action Is Backed Up.

Chicago, June 17.—After a continuous session of fourteen hours the credentials committee of the Republican national convention completed its labors at 4:45 Wednesday morning. No change was made in temporary roll call of delegates and alternates. Full approval was given to work of the national committee, which devoted eight days to the question.

The committeemen looked decidedly different than they did when they entered upon their allnight meeting. Many members had not left the room throughout the fourteen hours' session and they exhibited marked signs of fatigue. Mayor Bookwalter of Indianapolis, the member of the credentials committee from Indiana, as he left the room, voiced the protests of the men classed as anti-Taft members of the committee, and announced a minority report would be made to the convention.

"Of the cases submitted by the 'allies,'" said the mayor, "those involving 110 seats had merit, but they were railroaded out of the hall without examination of evidence in support by the committee. Arguments were not listened to at all and the Taft men adopted rules which absolutely excluded members of the committee from participating in the debate."

Preliminaries out of the way the Alabama contests were called. Twenty-two seats were involved. After a comparatively short time for argument the committee sustained the action taken by the national committee in this case. A test vote was had, however, showing a division. The Taft forces supported by 31 votes against 7. At no time during the long night's session was there any other test of strength, but members of the committee favorable to the "allies" said they were outnumbered four to one. The action taken in case indicated this estimate not far from correct. Sweeping through contests from Arkansas, Florida, Georgia, Kentucky, Mississippi, Missouri, Ohio, Tennessee and Texas the Taft delegations were seated without a break. Contests from all other states had been withdrawn.

Before the night was half over it was plain to every one that the "allies" had not succeeded in overturning a single decision which had been made by the national committee.

When the Texas was reached Chairman Fulton invited the members of the press into the committee room that they might listen to the argument made by Colonel Cecil A. Lyon, national committeeman from that state, and an intimate friend and frequent host of President Roosevelt. Colonel Lyon is not a lawyer, but in a picturesque and forceful manner he advocated the cause of the Taft delegation, involving thirty-six seats, the whole state delegation. He was opposed by A. N. Sager of St. Louis. The result was the same as in all the preceding cases.

After the committee adjourned Chairman Fulton and Representative Fassett asserted the cases of the "allies" were weak in every particular and could not have been decided otherwise than as they were. Both these gentlemen said the charge that the national committee was prejudiced in favor of Secretary Taft had been refuted and the committee fully vindicated.

Mr. Fulton announced he would not draw up the report of the committee until after he had a few hours' sleep

NO REDUCTION.

Resolution of Burke Defeated by the Rules Committee.

Chicago, June 17.—The effort to secure a reduced representation of delegates to national Republican conventions again has failed. By a vote of 24 to 17, the committee on rules ejected the Burke resolution providing for such reduction, and also, by practical the same vote, tabled the Parsons substitute. Representative Burke and his sixteen supporters announced that they would file a minority report.

As on Tuesday the main opposition came from the southern states. Alabama, South Carolina, and Maryland bitterly attacked the resolution, the delegates from those states taking the same ground as their southern colleagues who spoke Tuesday that a reduction in the representation would spell the disruption of the Republican party in the south. They had the support of General Powell Clayton, national committeeman and delegate from Arkansas, who maintained that the resolution was simply a proposition to crucify the colored man, and divide his raiment among certain states north of the Mason and Dixon line. He argued that the negro was loyal to the Republican party, but if he cast "the enemy" there was nothing left to him, but to make the best terms he could with those to whom he had been consigned.

The Democratic party will take every negro vote it can get, he said, and whenever the negroes commence to vote the Democratic ticket the Democratic party will count their votes north and south.

Had Narrow Escape.

Chicago, June 17.—Charles Pangborn, an unknown man, and two girls who concealed their names were rescued Wednesday morning after a narrow escape on Lake Michigan. They were caught in a storm in a gasoline launch when the machinery broke. They were kept busy all Tuesday night bailing the craft, it several times being nearly swamped. Lifesavers rescued them.

Lawson Advocates Roosevelt.

Chicago, June 17.—Thomas Lawson has a full page advertisement in all papers urging the convention to renominate Roosevelt. He says the aversion to a third term is nothing compared to the aversion of allowing the president to name his successor.
